Welcome to Wye Valley NHS Trust

We are committed to supporting our staff in their own professional development and take pride in giving them the freedom to innovate and improve patient care.

We are looking for people who are passionate about making a difference and improving the quality of care for patients.

To provide the highest quality services we need enthusiastic, dedicated, well-trained people to work with us in a variety of roles; both clinical and non-clinical.

We want to be a model employer and one that people choose. Working with us will give you a unique opportunity to touch the lives of people in your community, whatever your role.

Whether this is your first experience of working for the NHS or you are moving on in your career, we would be delighted if you would consider applying for one of our advertised roles.

If you’re reading this you’ve already shown some interest in joining our organisation.
The County Hospital site has a strong mix of the old and the new in terms of architecture. In differing forms, healthcare has been delivered on this site for around 1000 years.
Wye Valley NHS Trust runs The County Hospital which is based in the city of Hereford, along with community services for Herefordshire and its borders. We also run community hospitals in the market towns of Ross-on-Wye, Leominster and Bromyard. The Trust also delivers a reablement service from a city centre site called Hillside.

Our workforce of around 3000 provides a range of specialist and generalists functions. We have strong clinical network connections with trusts in Birmingham, Worcester, Gloucester and Cardiff.

With an annual turnover of around £160 million, serving a population of 180,000, the trust is one of the smallest rural DGHs in England. We work hard to deliver across traditional boundaries to provide integrated care in order to deliver a standard of care we would want for ourselves, our families and friends.

To find out more, visit www.wyevalley.nhs.uk

The key principles of Wye Valley NHS Trust are to improve the health and wellbeing of the people we serve in Herefordshire and the surrounding areas.

We combine the opportunity to work with state-of-the-art equipment within a highly trained multi-disciplinary team environment, whilst enjoying the unique benefits of city living with a country lifestyle in Herefordshire and the surrounding areas.

Join us and we'll provide a supportive, high quality, diverse and interesting experience incorporating continuous professional development and a varied caseload to broaden your skills and knowledge.

Vision: To improve the health and well being of the people we serve in Herefordshire and the surrounding areas.

Mission: To provide a quality of care we would want for ourselves, our families and friends.

Which means: Right care, right place, right time...every time.

Values: Compassion, Accountability, Respect, Excellence
Living in Herefordshire

If you’ve ever dreamt of living in a place which brings together the convenience of living in a city with the lifestyle associated with a home in a rural idyll, Herefordshire is the place for you.

But don’t just take our word for it – The Sunday Times has voted Ledbury, one of our market towns, as one of the top 50 “Best Rural Places to Live in Britain”.

The City of Hereford and the five market towns offer a wide variety of lifestyles blending the traditional with the modern. This is a county of contrasts where walkers enjoy breath-taking views, adrenalin seekers rave about our rock faces and river rapids, and connoisseurs of fine food enthuse about the quality of our locally grown produce.

Cycling, canoeing, climbing and kayaking sit neatly alongside theatres, art galleries, museums, festivals and more. There’s something for everyone.

For more information visit: www.visitherefordshire.co.uk or www.welcometoherefordshire.com if you have recently entered the country.

SCHOOLING

We have a high concentration of high quality schools in the state sector such as St Mary’s RC and Bishop of Hereford Bluecoat School, as well as independents ranging from Moor Park Preparatory which feeds the Etons and Harrows, to Hereford Cathedral School. Just south of the city is a flourishing Rudolph Steiner School.

Herefordshire is ranked one of the safest counties to live in England.

In April 2016 the Times Education Supplement named Hereford Sixth Form College the best “Sixth Form College of the Year” in its further education awards.

HOUSING

Housing in Herefordshire offers something for all tastes. Urban minimalism through to rural retreat and anything in between can be found on the listings of Herefordshire Estate Agents.

We have put together some examples of properties available in Herefordshire on the next page.
Buying examples...

- £595k
  5 bed det.
  Rural

- £360k
  4 bed det.
  Rural

- £190k
  4 bed semi
  City

- £245k
  4 bed det.
  City

- £449k
  4 bed det.
  City
It’s not all about work…

Eateries...

Herefordshire has a wealth of eateries including six which appear in the Michelin Guide. In addition to the usual city-centre culprits there are individual offerings from the likes of The Shack Revolution who are devoted to stone-baked pizza and cocktails, The Beef Boys and Rule of Tum both serving world class burgers and The Cozy Club who specialise in family food and eccentric interior design!

CHILD CARE

There are a full range of childcare options available in Herefordshire, including holiday and after school care.

[Link to website]

The local council have listings for nurseries, play and toddler groups, child minders and more.

TRANSPORT LINKS

Hereford is serviced by a central train line with easy connections to Worcester, Birmingham, Newport and Cardiff. The local bus service is great for visiting Herefordshire’s Market Towns and the National Express Service is superb for those longer journeys. The road infrastructure is much the same as many cities, peak times can be sticky but that’s nothing new.

Shopping

Hereford boast a new shopping development “The Old Market” which links easily with the other city shopping spaces. The city now has all that you’d expect from a shopping experience plus access to individual boutiques, markets and a superb café culture.